Elkhorn Nebraska Law Firm Serving West Douglas County Elkhorn became part of the City of Omaha through annexation in 2007, yet plenty of residents still say they live in Elkhorn first and Omaha second. That independent streak runs through the western edge of Douglas County, from the neighborhoods around Village Pointe at 168th Street and West Dodge Road to the acreages and farm ground stretching toward Valley and Waterloo. Families here tend to plan ahead, and many business owners run companies they intend to hand to the next generation. When they need legal help, they often look east toward Erickson | Sederstrom P.C., L.L.O., a law firm in Omaha that has been full-service law firm advising Nebraska families and companies since 1967. The drive is straightforward. From Elkhorn, West Dodge Road runs east as an expressway past Boys Town and on to the I-680 interchange, and the Regency Westpointe building on Regency Parkway Drive sits just beyond it, between West Dodge Road and Pacific Street. From the south end of Elkhorn, some drivers prefer Pacific Street, which heads east through west Omaha and leads directly into the Regency neighborhood. Outside of rush hour, the trip is usually well under half an hour, which makes an in-person meeting easy to fit into a workday. West Douglas County brings a particular mix of legal needs. Estate planning is near the top of the list, and the firm's estate planning attorneys, including shareholders Joseph C. Byam II, Daniel I. Dittman and Andrew J. Huettner, work on wills, revocable trusts, powers of attorney, health care directives and business and farm succession planning. For landowners with ground that has been in the family for decades, the goals are familiar: move wealth to the next generation, keep taxes down and protect assets from creditors. Parents of young children also benefit from knowing that Nebraska treats anyone under 19 as a minor, which shapes how guardianship provisions and trusts for children should be written.
