

Should You Settle or Litigate a Business Dispute in Omaha Most business disputes end in a settlement, so the better question is usually when to settle and on what terms, not whether. Litigation makes sense when the other side will not engage reasonably, when an important principle or ongoing relationship is at stake, or when a court order is the only way to protect your company, while settlement makes sense when the likely recovery does not justify the cost, time, and distraction of a trial. Start by looking honestly at the numbers. Litigation in Douglas County District Court or in the U.S. District Court for the District of Nebraska at the Roman L. Hruska Courthouse involves written discovery, depositions, motions, and often outside witnesses such as forensic accountants, and a contested case can take a long time to reach trial. Your team will spend hours pulling records and preparing testimony instead of running the business. Against that, weigh the strength of your evidence, the amount in dispute, whether the other side can actually pay a judgment, and whether a Law Firm public court record could affect customers or lenders. Timing matters as well. In Nebraska, claims on a written contract generally must be filed within five years and claims on an oral contract within four, so waiting too long to decide can take litigation off the table entirely. There is also middle ground. Mediation lets both sides test their positions with a neutral third party, and it can happen before a lawsuit or after some discovery has shown each side where it stands. Filing suit can itself move a stalled negotiation. Whichever law firm in Omaha you experienced law firm hire should prepare the case as if it will go to trial, because that preparation is what tends to produce a fair settlement offer.

Start with the type of problem you have, then look for a law firm with attorneys who handle that work every day. Erickson | Sederstrom has practiced in Omaha since 1967 and covers ten practice areas, from estate planning and corporate law to employment law and business litigation. Ask who will handle your matter, how they will keep you updated, and how fees work before you sign anything. Can I walk into a law firm in Omaha without an appointment? Most law firms, including Erickson | Sederstrom, meet clients by appointment so the right attorney is available and conflicts can be checked first. Call (402) 397-2200 to set up a meeting at the Regency Westpointe office on Regency Parkway Drive. The Omaha office is open Monday to Friday, 8 AM to 5 PM. What are red flags when hiring a lawyer? Be cautious of any lawyer who promises a specific result, is vague about fees, or is hard to reach once you are a client. Charles V. Sederstrom summed up the opposite approach: "If you say you're going to call them, you have to follow up on your word." Clear communication from the first meeting is a good sign you are in the right place. What should I look for in a larger Omaha law firm? Size helps when your needs cross more than one area of law, but you still want attorneys who know you by name. Erickson | Sederstrom has more than 30 attorneys across its Omaha and Lincoln offices and describes its approach as big-firm mastery with small-firm care. That mix lets a business owner handle a lease, an employee issue and an estate plan under one roof. What does a full-service law firm handle? A full-service firm covers both business and personal legal needs rather than a single

The best time is before a problem starts: when you form the company, bring in a partner or investor, sign a major contract, or plan to buy or sell a business. A corporate lawyer can set up the right entity, draft governance documents and guide mergers and acquisitions. Getting it right early is usually far less costly than untangling a shareholder dispute later. Do I need an estate planning attorney in Nebraska? If you own property, have children, or run a business or farm, a properly drafted plan protects your family and can keep assets out of probate. Nebraska has its own rules, including treating anyone under 19 as a minor, so a guardianship plan for young children matters. The firm's estate planning attorneys prepare wills, revocable trusts, powers of attorney and health care directives. How long does probate take in Nebraska? Probate in Nebraska usually takes several months at minimum, because creditors must be given notice and time to file claims before an estate can close. Contested matters or complex assets can stretch that much longer. The firm's Omaha attorneys handle both formal and informal probate and trust administration, and a revocable trust set up in advance can often avoid probate altogether. What does an employment attorney do for employers? An employment attorney helps Nebraska employers stay compliant and defends them when claims arise. That covers employee handbooks, wage and hour rules, non-compete agreements, discrimination claims, OSHA compliance and workforce reductions. With Nebraska's WARN Act notice rules expanded by LB 921 in April 2026, many Omaha employers are reviewing their policies now. What is business litigation? Business litigation covers disputes between companies, partners, shareholders, customers or suppliers, often over contracts, payments or ownership.
