Understanding the Mechanics of Mystery Mines

At its many fundamental level, Mystery Mines is a grid-based game, usually including a 5x5 design including 25 covert tiles. Beneath these tiles, a fixed variety of "mines" (or bombs) are concealed, while the remaining tiles consist of "gems" or "diamonds."

The goal is straightforward: the gamer chooses a number of mines they want to conceal in the grid before the game starts. As soon as the round begins, the gamer clicks tiles one by one.

- If you discover a gem: Your payment multiplier boosts. You can select to "cash out" at any time to secure your profits.
- If you struck a mine: The game ends right away, and you lose your stake.

The Math Behind the Grid

The enjoyment of Mystery Mines stems from the variable volatility. Gamers have control over the game's problem. If a player chooses to conceal just one mine throughout the whole board, the benefit for discovering a gem is extremely low because the possibility of success is high. Alternatively, if a player conceals 20 mines, the risk is astronomical, however landing on a single clear tile yields a massive multiplier.

Number of Mines	Likelihood of Success (1st Tile)	Typical Multiplier (1st Tile)
1 Mine	96.0%	~ 1.02 x
3 Mines	88.0%	~ 1.11 x
5 Mines	80.0%	~ 1.22 x
10 Mines	60.0%	~ 1.60 x
15 Mines	40.0%	~ 2.50 x
20 Mines	20.0%	~ 4.80 x
