Here's an example table of common dumpster sizes and their typical fees based on local price averages—they keep their pricing within this transparent range without surprises:

Dumpster Size	Dimensions (LxWxH)	Standard Rental Fee	Weight Limit	Overage Charge (per 100 lbs)
10 Yard Dumpster	12' x 8' x 3.5'	$290	2,500 lbs	$45
15 Yard Dumpster	15' x 8' x 4'	$355	3,000 lbs	$50
20 Yard Dumpster	20' x 8' x 4'	$425	4,000 lbs	$55
30 Yard Dumpster	22' x 8' x 6'	$550	6,000 lbs	$60

Notice how these fees are all-inclusive for a standard rental period (usually 7-10 days) and the weight limits are clearly stated. This transparency makes it easy to plan your project budget and avoid overfilling fees.

Choosing the Right Dumpster Size: Quick Checklist

Picking the right dumpster size upfront saves money and frustration. Here's a quick checklist for common projects to help decide which dumpster fits your needs:

- Small cleanouts or minor home remodels: 10-yard dumpster (roughly fits about 3 pickup truck loads)
- Larger kitchen or bathroom tear-outs: 15-yard dumpster
- Full roofing projects or extensive remodeling: 20-yard dumpster
- Construction site clean-up or major decks/garages: 30-yard dumpster

Weight Limits and Overage Charges: What You Need to Know

This is where many renters get tripped up. It's typical for dumpsters to have weight limits based on the type of debris and local hauling regulations. D.E.M.M. Dumpsters LLC includes weight limits for each dumpster in their pricing structure—no hidden "fine print" surprises.

If you go over the weight limit, the overage charge is applied per 100 pounds over. The good news is you'll be informed upfront of these charges, so you can adjust your waste disposal strategy accordingly.

Tips to avoid overage fees:

- Know what materials go into the dumpster—heavy materials like concrete, soil, or roofing shingles add weight quickly.

- Consider renting a larger size if you know weight will be heavy; a couple hundred pounds in overage fees can cost more than a size upgrade.
- Use the customer login to request early swap-outs if you think you're nearing weight capacity before your rental window ends.
